Mai Ton and Racha Islands

Just south of Phuket, the Racha Islands with secluded coves, clear waters and powdery beaches are a haven for fishing aficionados. This area often attracts larger marine life such as giant barracudas, reef sharks, manta rays and occasionally a whale. To find the best spots it is recommended to hire a fishing guide. Vibrant and diverse marine life congregate round the hard coral reef and granite boulders, with underwater visibility up to 30 meters in good conditions. The water is crystal clear for swimming and snorkelling with plenty of areas to visit. Along the way lies the secluded private Island of Mai Ton with white beaches away from the main tourist thoroughfares which can be accessed for a fee.

Krabi or the Phi Phi Islands

Extend your trip into the Andaman Sea and Krabi where you visit the amazing 'Hong' islands along the way and visit white sandy beaches only accessible by sea. Alternatively, cruise to the beautiful Phi Phi archipelago; a cluster of islands that house some of the bay's most spectacular sights. This area is famous for its clear turquoise waters.
